at the Opening Ceremony of the 3rd Biennial Conference of APLAP

Monday, 9th May B.E. 2537 (1994)

National Assembly, Bangkok

-----

Mr. Karl Min Ku; President of the APLAP,

Distinguished delegates,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

On behalf of the Thai National Assembly, and of myself, may I, first of all, extend my warm welcome to all the distinguished participants to our capital city, Bangkok.

I deem it an honour for our parliament to host this conference in Bangkok. In the days ahead, this conference will provide you ample opportunities to exchange ideas and share experience on "Resources and Information Sharing of Legislation". I am confident that with your valuable participation, this conference will yield fruitful outcome and make concrete contribution to the works of all our representative institutions.

President of the APLAP,
Distinguished delegates,
Ladies and Gentlemen,

As a matter of fact, legislation has become a multifarious affair. Legislators have also the duties to scrutinize and supervise the administration of the government. Therefore, parliamentarians require the updated information on a wide range of subjects and problems demanding legislative measures so as to make active and appropriate action. To fulfil their duties, the actions depend upon the efficiency of the library and information service at a certain extent. It is recognized that the library and information service should make every effort to ensure that parliamentarians have access to the precise and reliable information. That is why today I see all of you, distinguished delegates, joining in this important event of your association. I would like to pay tribute to your deliberation and wish this conference every success. I will await, with much expectation, the fruitful result.

President of the APLAP,

Distinguished delegates,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

May I now declare open the Third Biennial Conference of the Association of Parliamentary Librarians of Asia and the Pacific.

Thank you.
